Contact Funding Competition

US-Russia University Partnership Program

Autumn 2015

The US-Russia University Partnership Program (UPP) is an initiative for mutual academic collaboration that connects higher education institutions in Russia and US with one another and supports the launch of new bilateral partnerships. It provides professors, researchers, administrators and other higher education professionals in Russia and the US with an opportunity to broaden the scope of their activities and learn from the vast wealth of knowledge and experience the counterpart institution brings to the partnership. UPP is implemented by Eurasia Foundation, in partnership with the National Training Foundation.

Eurasia Foundation (EF) was founded in 1992 to empower the citizens of the nations that comprised the Soviet Union to advance their countries socially and economically. Since then, Eurasia Foundation has transformed from a US-based foundation with field offices in the region to the Eurasia Foundation Network comprised of six autonomous institutions: New Eurasia Foundation in Russia, Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia, and Eurasia Partnership Foundation in the South Caucasus, East Europe Foundation of Ukraine, East Europe Foundation of Moldova, and Eurasia Foundation in the United States. By working together, the network's foundations increase exchanges among local and international institutions throughout the region and multiply the social return on the financial investments made by their donors.

COMPETITION GOAL

To further its goal of promoting collaboration between higher education institutions in the US and Russia, UPP is conducting a two-stage partnership funding competition for projects proposed jointly by Russian and US higher education institutions.

This Request for Proposal (RFP) governs the first stage of the competition. Through this RFP, EF calls for proposals requesting funding of up to $2,500 per partnership to support the initial development of joint submissions to the second "Linkage" stage of the competition. The Linkage stage will offer more substantial funding for implementation of joint partnership projects with the goal of forming long-lasting and sustainable relationships between the partner institutions. Please note that the only expected outcome of Contact funding is a carefully developed Linkage project funding proposal.

Applications for Contact funding will be accepted through October 1, 2015, 12:00 p.m. East Coast time. They will be evaluated by a review panel of UPP staff and independent experts based on selection criteria stated below. Finalists will be notified on October 15, 2015.

ELIGIBILITY

The following are eligibility criteria for Contact funding:

- Any degree-granting higher education institution in Russia or the US that is accredited by the Ministry of Education and Science of the Russian Federation (for Russian institutions) or an accreditation agency recognized by the US Department of Education (for US institutions) is eligible. This may include higher education institutions other than universities such as community colleges, liberal arts colleges and conservatories.
- Project proposals must include at least one Russian institution and one US institution. The number of partner institutions submitting the joint proposal can be higher than two if necessary.
- UPP project funding can only support new partnerships. UPP will not support continued or bridge funding to existing partnerships.
- Institutions that have not engaged in US-Russia collaborations in the past are more likely to be selected. However, institutions with existing bilateral US-Russia partnerships may still apply as long as the funding sought is for a new partnership in a different academic area.
- Individual schools and/or departments within the same institution may submit applications for funding, but UPP will typically fund only one project per institution during each funding round.
- While there are no geographic limits on eligibility within the two countries, regional institutions (e.g. outside of Moscow or St. Petersburg) or projects with a significant regional component are more likely to be selected.
- Funding is awarded on the institutional rather than individual level. Proposals must include written approval from an appropriate institutional official with legal authorization to enter into contractual obligations on behalf of the institution.
- Institutions that submitted Contact funding proposals to the previous round in 2015 but did not receive funding are eligible to reapply. Institutions that received Contact funding in the previous round are NOT eligible to reapply for new Contact funding.

PROJECT COMPONENTS

The partnership projects designed during the Contact stage may cover any academic or professional subject matter, but should avoid topics that focus on political activity, public policy reform or other non-academic goals.

Contact Proposals that are eligible for UPP funding include (but are not necessarily limited to) the following types of partnerships:

- International Dual/Double Degree Programs
 - These study programs are collaboratively offered by two or more higher education institutions located in different countries. They typically feature a jointly developed and integrated curriculum and agreed-on credit recognition, and involve students studying at two or more partnering higher education institutions. Upon completion of the program, students receive degree certificates issued separately by each of the institutions involved in the program.
Example: <http://www.bard.edu/academics/dualdegree/>
- International Joint Degree Programs
 - Similar to dual/double degree programs, joint degree programs typically offer students the opportunity to study at two or more of the partnering higher education institutions. Upon completion, they are awarded a single degree certificate issued and signed jointly by all institutions involved in the program.

- Collaborative Teaching / Joint Courses
 - These are partnership components fostered through virtual classrooms, videoconferences, email exchanges, and web-based platforms. Such partnerships might include working with a partner institution to develop new course modules.
Example: <http://trinity.duke.edu/teaching-innovation/collaborative-teaching-through-research-across-institutions>
- Faculty Exchanges
 - Through these agreements, institutions arrange for the exchange of faculty members for the purpose of teaching or research at the counterpart institution. Guest faculty members might instruct entire courses or components of courses.
Example: <http://web.mit.edu/sktech/faculty-research/>
- Faculty-Led Study Tours
 - Commonly, these are academic courses combining traditional classroom learning and experiential learning in an international setting. Tours provide students and faculty first-hand opportunities to conduct research and increase cultural knowledge in the context of the partner country.

- Joint Research Projects
 - Such projects involve collaboration on research projects of mutual interest to partnering institutions. Example: <http://eureca.ucla.edu/eureca/home>
- Resource-Sharing Arrangements
 - These arrangements between institutions involve sharing of laboratory equipment, library resources, art collections, curricula, and the like.

The following partnerships types are not eligible for UPP funding:

- Student Exchanges
- International Service Learning
- Internship Programs

CRITERIA FOR PROJECT EVALUATION AND SELECTION

The following criteria will be used in assessing Contact funding proposals:

1. The degree of adherence to competition requirements as described in the RFP (e.g. eligibility, project components, use of funds, application deadlines)
2. Clarity of the plans and timeline of the suggested activities during the Contact stage
3. The potential for significant and concrete benefits in both countries resulting from successful implementation of the partnership
4. Innovativeness of the suggested partnership project in breaking new ground for bilateral engagement
5. Experience of partner institutions in the proposed area

6. The degree of parity in participation among partner institutions
7. Effectiveness of joint management plan among partner institutions
8. The degree of potential for long-term sustainability of the partnership beyond the funding period

USE OF FUNDS

Applicants may request a combined total funding of up to $2,500 per partnership during the Contact stage to facilitate the collaborative development of Linkage project funding proposals. The partner applicants may request unequal funding levels, depending on where they expect to expend certain funds and for what purpose. The allocation scheme for project funding should be fully explained and justified within the Contact application.

Once award decisions are made, each institution receiving funding will conclude a separate agreement with Eurasia Foundation. If a single institution requests to receive the full funding amount on behalf of the partnership, expenditure decisions should be made in consultation with the non-recipient partner.

Institutions receiving funding for the implementation of the same project are treated as fully equal partners: they have equal rights and responsibilities within the project framework in relation to each other and Eurasia Foundation.

Funding may be used for:

- Direct costs of project development-related events, e.g. organizing meetings, rental of conference facilities, translation services
- Communication between partner institutions, e.g. phone, fax, e-mail
- Transportation of project participants to meeting(s) and related expenses, e.g. accommodation, per diem
- Other expenses directly related to project development

In accordance to the EF policy, funding may not be used for covering such expenses as ongoing expenses, construction expenses, the purchase of real estate, or the repayment of debts. Please note that if salary costs are included in the proposal budget, a clear justification must be provided for establishing both the salary level and percentage of working time dedicated to the project.
